Forestry Management Technology Department & Program Mission Statement

The mission of the Department, the Programs and its faculty is to support the broader College's goals as detailed above, but also provide a comprehensive silviculturally based environmental education that recognizes the broad multiple uses demanded from the forest environments of South Carolina, the Southeastern United States and the nation.

- We want our graduates to recognize how their daily decisions will have a lasting impact on the social, cultural, economic, and environment fabric of our state, region and country.
- Their natural resource decision making process must be based on the highest professional and ethical standards for the long term protection and promotion of a high demand resource.
- We strive to prepare well trained forest, wildlife and natural resource technicians for both public and private sector employers and promote career opportunities for our graduates.

Part I: Course Information

Effective Term: Fall 2024/Spring 2025/Summer 2025

COURSE PREFIX: NRM 209

COURSE TITLE: Remote Sensing & Digital Processing

CONTACT HOURS: 2.0 Lecture, 3.0 Lab

CREDIT HOURS: 3.0

RATIONALE FOR THE COURSE:

The fields of forestry and wildlife (among numerous others) have long benefitted from the use of remotely sensed data. Satellite and aerial imagery are often the first tools to be used in any habitat or forest management process. The interpretation and analysis of this imagery (often within a GIS) can save foresters and wildlife biologists numerous hours in the field, while also improving the quality of their data. While the technology for collecting remotely sensed data will continue to improve and advance, natural resource professionals will continually be required to work with and analyze this data.

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course is a study of basic concepts of remote sensing, including the use of aerial photography and satellite imagery and their integration into a geographic information system. This course covers classifying, reprojecting, filtering, analyzing and modifying images from a variety of sources.
